Washington Authorities Again Prevent the Betting at Ivy City.

ADDIE GETS THE HANDICAP.

Sam Bryant, Fiction, Ely and Lester Also Capture Their Events.

(By Associated Press.)
RACE TRACK, IVY CITY, Dec. 27.-There were very few people at the Ivy City track to-day. Mr. Engeman announced, after the police proceedings this morning, that no betting would be permitted at the track, but that races would be run as usual.

A large force of detectives were hand when the races began, with instructions to watch sharp for any in-fractions of the law. Though there was considerable hand booking indulged in the officers did not interfere.

The majority of the regulars remained in town. Racing without betting had no charms for them, and, besides, the afternoon proceedings at the police court promised to be very interesting.

promised to be very interesting.

The track was in excellent shape. The races were spirited. There being no betting, every owner was out for the purse, and the result was hotly contested sport. Sam Bryant took the first event with ease, being fourth to the stretch and then making his effort. Little Charley was second and McMurtry third.

Fiction won the second race easily. Carter trailed along with her until the stretch was reached, where he brought her up and easily passed the leaders. Dr. Cosby was in front to the head of the stretch, where he went all to pieces. Pecksniff was second and Doc Birch third.

the Grand Jury To-Day.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.-Bookmaker Bennington, otherwise known as Marvin, and his three clerks, will have to answer to an indictment brought by the Grand Jury instead of to a simple police court warrant.

To-day at L.O o'clock the Grand Jury, ignoring the fact that the men had been arrested and were to be tried in police This afternoon when the time for the police court trial arrived District-Attorney Birney announced that the cases against Bennington and his associates had been nolle prossed. The arrested men then started to leave the building, men then started to leave the building, when they were immediately rearrested on bench warrants.

Their trial is now likely to be delayed some time, and to-day's course in the courts is likely to prove embarrassing to President Engeman and his associates.

This was a most clever move on District-Attorney Birney's part, and one that was hardly anticipated by President Engeman's counsel. District-Attorney Birney will thus be enabled to proceed at his leisure and will considerably harass the Ivy City management, which confidently expected to have the matter settled to-day.

It is thought that racing will be postponed until the indicted men are tried, for Mr. Engeman can hardly afford to give away $1,500 a day in purses and get no returns.

The trust was created April, 22, 1872, prior to Mrs. Deacon's marriage, for her benefit for life, and upon her death the principal is to go to her children.

The trust estate consisted of stock valued at $50,000, which has increased in value to $4,000. The trustees were originally Mr. Westervelt and C. Adolph Low. Mr. Westervelt has acted for fourteen years, and asked to be relieved. Mrs. Deacon consented to Mr. Westervelt's withdrawal as trustee. Justice Truax appointed a referee to take testimony and pass upon the propriety of the request. The referee reported the accounts correct, and recommended that the resignation be accepted.

Mrs. Deacon's children, who will be benefited by the trust after their mother's death, are Marle G. Deacon, Ida A. Deacon, Edith E. F. Deacon and Evaline Dorothy Deacon.

COLLEGIATE CHESS PLAYERS.

The Game Between Yale and Columbia to bia Attracts Most Attention.

The intercollegiate chess tournament, which was begun at Harvard school yesterday, was resumed this afternoon. The players were paired off as follows: Table No. 1—Hymes, Columbia, vs. Ross, Yale; table No. 2—Ewing, Princeton, vs. Hewins, Harvard; table No. 3—Libaire, Columbia, vs. Spading, Harvard; table No. 4—Skinner, Yale, vs. Roberts, Princeton.

The most interest centred in the game hetween Ross, of Yale, and Hymes, of Columbia, these two being looked upon as two of the best players. Hymes opened the game with a Scotch gambit. At table No. 2 Ewing opened with a quisers gambit, which was declined by Hawins.

The syle of plays at tables 3 and 4 was the Sicilian defense and French defense respectively, the first mamed player in each instance making the first move.
